An Unkind Friend.

It is not often that I see a copy of the Friend, but by some chance the issue for the current month was put into my hands, and on looking over the first or editorial article I was astonished, not at the tone of the article itself or at the charitable spirit of the writer, but at the amazing ignorance—or worse—which could crowd so many misstatements into so small a space. We are told that the "nobility of England tends to profligacy," and that "the State Church habitually leans towards a low standard in

I have little personal acquaintance with the nobility of Eugland and so shall not pretend to any; the editor of the Friend, however, "most ignorant of what he's most assured," pronounces their profligacy as a dogma of his own. Merely judging from history of the past and the current literature of the day, I assert that the British House of Lords as statesmen, scholars, orators and gentlemen need not fear comparison with legislative chamber in the

The morals and teaching of the "State Church" need no defense. Wilberforce and Magee, Thiriwail and Ellicott, Tait and Ryle, Selwyn, Patteson and Hamington are amongst the leaders "towards a low standard of morality"! and surely a good democrat ought to feel kindly towards the Bishops of the "State Church"-are they not all selfmade

Farther on we come to the statement that brewing, distilling, etc., are almost "the only commercial occupation fit for the aristocracy." What the qualification "commercial" may be worth is not clear. If it mean any person who has enriched and raised himself and his family by merchandise, inventious, authorship, or other fruits of talents and perseverance, then we may suppose Lyou Playfair, Lord Playfair, and Wm. Thompson, Lord Kelvin, to be of the brewers, and Wm. Armstrong, Lord Armstrong, must certainly be the distiller, for I have been confidently informed that he puts a dis-tillery into every vessel he builds, and the consequence is that the crew are always, by day and by night, distilling—fresh water from

Mr. Gladstone's father followed a commercial occupation and earned a fortune and a Baronetcy. Dr. John son thought no worse of his friend

Thrale because Thrale was a brewer But the real pith of the article in the Friend is the glorification of certain persons who it seems will not tolerate "a racing Premier." If the Friend does not know it, "every large and small bethel" does know, that Lord Rosebery was no more a racing Premier on the day of the Derby than he was on the day that he was chosen by his party to succoed Mr. Gladstone.

Lord Rosebery has owned race horses ever since he was at Oxford twenty-five years ago and has never concealed the fact. He was known on the turf before he was known in the Legislature, and in both scenes has always approved himself au honest, upright gentleman, and is not, so say the papers, a betting man. For a quarter of a century through his whole public career -Lord Rosebery has been known as an owner and occasional starter of race horses. This terrible vice has been condoned for all this time, and now it seems that the real crime affecting this peculiarly partial conscience is owning, not only an ordin-ary racehorse, but an extraordinary

Killed in the Streets of London In the streets of London in one rear no fewer than 241 passengers have been killed by the movement of vehicles. On the 20,000 miles of railway in the United Kingdom, the trains of which ran nearly 300,000, and carried about 800,000,000 passengers and 282,000,000 tons of goods minerals, only 17 passengers were killed last year and 484 injured by accidents to trains, rolling stock,

Prevention Is Better Than cure, and those who are subject to rheumatism can prevent attacks by keeping the blood pure and free from the acid which causes the disease. You can rely upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for rheumatism and catarrh, also for every form of scrofula, sait rheum, boils and other diseases caused by impure blood. It tones and vitalizes the whole system.
